

Sustainability discussion group's Climate Fiction recommendations

Sustainability Discussion Group (28.4.) created a recommendation list of Climate fictions to give us insight of future and hope

Novels, articles:

- Slow Hope: Rethinking Ecologies of Crisis and Fear, Christof Mauch
<http://www.environmentandsociety.org/perspectives/2019/1/slow-hope-rethinking-ecologies-crisis-and-fear>
- So your grandmother is a starship now: a quick guide for the bewildered, Marissa Lingen
<https://www.nature.com/articles/d41586-021-00503-3>
- 'If I could travel in time' by Zed 5755, Jessy Randall
<https://www.nature.com/articles/d41586-021-00982-4>
- Climate Anxiety Is an Overwhelmingly White Phenomenon, Sarah Jaquette Ray
<https://www.scientificamerican.com/article/the-unbearable-whiteness-of-climate-anxiety/>

Books:

- History of Bees, Maja Lunde
- Memory of Water and Kuunpäivän kirjeet, Emmi Itäranta
- Oryx and Crake, Margaret Atwood 2003
- The Year of the Flood, Margaret Atwood 2009
- MaddAddam, Margaret Atwood 2013
- Science in the Capital trilogy, Kim Stanley Robinson
- The Overstory, Richard Powers 2018
- Ministry for the Future, Kim Stanley Robinson
- New York 2140, Kim Stanley Robinson
- Flight Behavior, Barbara Kingsolver
- Odds Against Tomorrow, 1960 movie
- Flight Behavior, Barbara Kingsolve
- How to Be a Good Creature: A Memoir in Thirteen Animals, Rebecca Green

Documentaries:

- My Octopus Teacher, documentary 2020
- Running a business and saving the world | VPRO Documentary:
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WZA9vz3xJQ0>
- When Robot and Crow Saved East St. Louis by Annalee Newitz :
<https://slate.com/technology/2018/12/annalee-newitz-short-story-when-robot-and-crow-saved-east-st-louis.html>